ECO MUST-HAVES

Simple elegance adds versatility to these designs, making them suitable for both modern and traditional settings.

1. Modern meets luxury with Tilde's '56 Buffet. Full customization makes it suitable for dining, media, and bedroom. From server to chest of drawers, anything is possible. Pricing upon request. tildefurniture.com

2. Sustainable hardware at its finest. Designed by William Harvey for Du Verre, the Arroyo Collection is crafted entirely from recycled aluminum in rich finishes of satin nickel, oil rubbed bronze and white. Priced from $22-$125. duverre.com

3. The elegant Toulouse freestanding bath from Victoria + Albert keeps water warm longer due to its unique ENGLISHCAST® construction rich in volcanic limestone. Naturally insulating and highly durable. Priced at $5,000. vandabaths.com

"We strived to create a series of linked garden rooms, each with a unique function and color palette to create a really dynamic environment. This was a highly creative and very gratifying project; one of my all time favorites."

A HOLLYWOOD GARDEN SHOWS OFF ITS SUPERIOR SPACE PLANNING AS THE LINES ARE BLURRED BETWEEN THE INTERIOR'S BEGINNINGS AND THE LANDSCAPE'S END.

Los Angeles-based design firm Elysian Landscapes has broken free from indoor confinement and expanded the scope of living space into the open air. Principal designer Judy Kameon, with her talented team in tow, consistently creates compelling and sustainably conscious landscapes for discerning clientele. Case in point: This Hollywood Hills retreat reveals a rich palette of burgundy, silver and purple expressed through a myriad of deliberately chosen plants and flowers—herbaceous, coniferous perennials and succulents, just to name a few—which all require low-water maintenance; an efficient irrigation system was also installed and designed to minimize overwatering. Permeable materials like gravel and decomposed granite were used throughout the grounds for the percolation of rainwater. The property contains a sense of discovery as you happen upon intimate, tucked-away gathering areas carefully placed and dispersed throughout the garden. Elysian Landscapes managed to preserve the natural fluidity between landscape and architecture, surpassing the homeowner's challenge to incorporate a pool, fire pit, dining area and water feature. elysianlandscapes.com
