Barnsley House,
Cirencester, Gloucestershire, UK

Barnsley House, set in the historic village of Barnsley, was built by the locally prominent Bouchier family in 1697, using locally quarried Cotswold stone.

In the 1950's, famous English garden designer Rosemary Verev transformed the grounds into a garden that is still receiving international acclaim for its beauty.

In recent years, the house has been carefully converted into a hotel, where each suite has kept its own character. The rooms, all featuring classic yet stylish interiors, overlook the famous gardens, where you can stroll through terraces, formal lawns, meadows and wilderness.
